

III

the moon is hiding in her hair.

The
lily
of heaven
full of all dreams,
draws down.

cover her briefness in singing close her with intricate faint birds by daisies and twilights Deepen her,

Recite
upon her
flesh
the rain's

pearls singly-whispering.